

Summaries and keywords

Makarenko V.P. Nostalgia Politics and Background of Personal Experience

Summary: By the material of his own biography, author reflects on the forms and practices of the current propaganda in Russia. According to the author, this propaganda realizes the main points of Soviet statism: the idea of absolute rightness of the state power and the public interest priority over the interests of individuals and society. But the socio-biographical experience allows us to formulate the opposite principles: the Soviet state was not fair; it was based on falsehood and hypocrisy. As suggested by the author, some of the facts of modern Russian history allow us to speak about the transformation of Soviet past into Russia's present.

Keywords: biography, propaganda, Soviet past, nostalgia for Soviet Union, neo-sovietism, statism.

Shkaratan O.I. Reproduction of Socio-Economic Inequality in Post-Soviet Russia: Dynamics of Living Standards and the Position of the Lower Classes

Summary: The chapter 8 of O.I. Shkaratan's fundamental work "Socio-economic inequality and its reproduction in modern Russia" is published now in the journal "Political Conceptology". The purpose of this chapter is to analyze the welfare inequality as an important aspect of social stratification. As a result, the following conclusions are made: in modern Russia, the social stratification is increased, social mobility is decreased, and focus on extracting rents from the achieved position is formed.

Keywords: inequality, welfare, social stratification, social stratification, social mobility.

Gaman-Golutvina O.V. The Metaphysical Dimensions of Transformations of Russian elites

Summary: The article examines the historical specificity of transformations of Russian society and state. The article is based on the 10 differences between the dynamic cultures and the stagnant ones, as these differences were proposed by Lawrence Harrison. According to the author, all the necessary prerequisites of the Russian subjectivity are developed today: territory, political mechanisms, etc. However, it is not enough to overcome the stagnation of Russian society and Russian elites. Breaking the vicious circle is possible only through deep institutional transformation.

Keywords: Russia, the elite, power, metaphysics, geocracy, marketization, transformation.

---

---

Proceedings of Russian-Ukrainian Conference “The Russian Power and Bureaucratic State”. Report.

Summary: Materials of the Russian-Ukrainian conference “The Russian Power and the Bureaucratic State” held in Rostov-on-Don, 26-27 March 2012.

Keywords: state, bureaucracy, Russian power, Russian system, palace state, cogitocracy, crisis.

Oleinik A.N. Mass Protests in Context of Russian Power

Summary: The Mass protests of the end of 2011 – the start of 2012 in Russia are interpreted as a reaction to the prevalence of a particular model of power relationships, i.e. Russian power. The paper also discusses several strategies that would allow moving from the equilibrium of Russian power to a democratic equilibrium, namely reform of municipal and regional authorities as well as academia reform.

Keywords: mass protests, Russian power, corruption, political elections, theory of power congruence.

Rats M.V., Kotelnikov S.I. State, Power, and Society after March 4

Summary: This article analyzes the political situation after the presidential elections March 4, 2012. As the authors of the article suggest, a paternalistic system of autocracy is reproduced in Russia, and this system is combined with dependent mentality of Russian population. Way out of this situation the authors see in the artification of current tendency of replacement of the dyad “policy-power” by the triad “policy-government-power”.

Keywords: mass protests, political power, autocracy, paternalism, government.

Bermus A.G. Innovation Policy in Education as a Liberal-Bureaucratic Myth

Summary: The article deals with Russian state policy in the education area. The author analyzes the official documents and regulations, making explicit some key memes that underlie the education reforms: progress, total continuity, unity and diversity, and the creation of conditions. According to the author, these memes characterize a liberal-bureaucratic myth of Russian policy in education area, and such myth needs to be critically reinterpreted.

Keywords: innovations, education policy, theory of memes, bureaucracy.

Tishchenko Y.R. Originality of the M.K. Petrov’s Work

Summary: The specificity of the M.K. Petrov's philosophical-cultural conception is analyzed in the article. The author believes that the M.K. Petrov's unique contribution to the study of culture consist in his concept of origin, functioning, and development of the European way of thinking.

Keywords: biography, culture, scientifying of society, sociocode, transmutation, human-dimensionality.

Petrov M.K. The Examination Did Not Take Place

Summary: The journal “Political Conceptology” publishes the story of the noted Russian thinker Mikhail Konstantinovich Petrov. When publishing, the important corrections were made that specify the original idea of the novel.

Keywords: Philosophy, the 20th congress of the CPSU, „thaw“, social criticism, intraparty debate, party crisis.

Derluguian G.M. Abkhazia: a Summary of the Ethnic Conflict

Summary: The article is devoted to the history of the Abkhazian independence war from the Republic of Georgia. The Abkhazian problems are structurally similar to the other separatist conflicts in the Caucasus and the Balkans, but, in author’s opinion, the conflict in Abkhazia is akin to revolution and civil war. The author analyzes the social processes in Abkhazia, its geographical location and history as conflict factors that determine the main trends and scenarios of the possible development of this country.

Keywords: ethnic conflict, national independence, revolution, civil war.

Berlyavsky L.G. Political Processes in Region of the Middle East: The Current Stage Problems

Summary: The study of political processes in the Middle East is of great interest due to the fact that the region is close to the southern borders of Russia and other former Soviet countries, and it certainly affects their political, economic and humanitarian interests. There are unstable political regimes (Iraq, Afghanistan, etc.) in several countries of this region, where the constitutional development is stalled, being affected by international sanctions (UNO, EU) or state law of leading Western countries. In addition, the Islamic fundamentalism exerts a significant, if not crucial influence on political development of several countries (Islamic Republic of Iran, Republic of Lebanon, Algeria, etc.).

Keywords: constitutional law, Near East, Islamic fundamentalism, state religion, evolution of constitutionalism, polity, confessional system, «Arabian revolutions».

Potseluev S.P., Konstantinov M.S. Moral Frames of Political Ideologies: Basic Concepts and Research Methodology

Summary: The paper describes the categorical apparatus and methodology for the study of the moral frames of political ideologies. The authors propose to integrate the conceptological and frame analysis with the activity-based approach to the study of political and moral phenomena. Finally, the basic methodological principles and basic concepts of integrative-cognitivist approach are formulated in the article.

Keywords: moral, politics, ideology, methodology, activity-based approach, frame, concept.

---

---

Makarenko V.P. Moral Concepts of Political Ideologies: the Specificity of the Conceptological Approach

Summary: The article is devoted to conceptological approach to the study of moral concepts of political ideologies. The nature of this approach, in author's opinion, is to analyze the relationship between absurd, morality, politics and ideologies.

Keywords: moral, politics, ideology, methodology, concept.

Konstantinov M.S. Ethics of Care in Feminist Political Philosophy

Summary: The article deals with the moral frames of feminist political philosophy. The author traces the history of feminism and the evolution of system of frames which are associated with the basic concepts of feminist ideology. The ethics of care as an integral part of modern feminism is specifically examined in the article.

Keywords: moral, politics, ideology, ethics of care, frame, concept, feminism.

Nikolaev I.V. Sources of Moral Criticism of the State of Anarchism

Summary: The paper analyzes the moral frames of anarchist political ideology. The author examines the key concepts of anarchism as well as frames associated with these concepts. Besides, the basis for a moral critique of the state is identified in the article.

Keywords: moral, politics, ideology, criticism of state, frame, concept, anarchism.

Bruns G.L. Anarchic Temporality. Writing, Friendship, and Ontology of Artwork in the Maurice Blanchet's Poetics

Summary: GERAL L. BRUNS — professor at the University of Notre Dame. In this essay the author explores the ontology of the work of art on the basis of Maurice Blanchot's ideas. Here the ontological question is the question of the reason — by what reason the work of art is possible? Heideggerian turn from the space into the time plunges the research into anarchic temporality.

Keywords: French philosophy of the twentieth century, the ontology of the work of art, anarchic temporality.